First American Ship.

Bath, at the mouth of the Kennebec, is to celebrate this week the 300th anniversary of the launching of the first ship ever built on American soil—the pinnace Virginia, which was constructed on what is now the site of a great ship yard. The Virginia was called a ship, although she was rigged more like a half brig and measured only about forty tons. She made several voyages between Jamestown, Va., and London. No more vessels were built at Bath for seventy years, but then the industry took root there and has flourished ever since.

The palmy days of wooden ship-building seems to have passed, but Bath still turns out dozens of fine vessels every year and there is a prospect now of a revival of the business. Not many years ago Bath turned out 30,000 to 40,000 tons of wooden vessels in a season, but lately the figures have dwindled down to 7,000 to 10,000 annually.

Talked with Bonaparte

There is still living in the village of Ligny, Belgium, a woman who spoke with the great Napoleon on the day of the battle, June 16, 1815 at that place.

Her name is Mme. Anne-Joseph Rubay, says the London daily Graphic, and she will reach her 102nd birthday on July 29. Her memory is still perfectly clear as to the incident. Napoleon had established his quarters close to the little farm where she and her mother were alone. Her parents had buried their little stock of money and valuables in the ground and in the morning the Emperor came out and took up his position near the spot. Fearing that he might discover the hiding place, the farmer's wife, to distract his attention, took her head in both hands and pretended to be suffering from toothache.

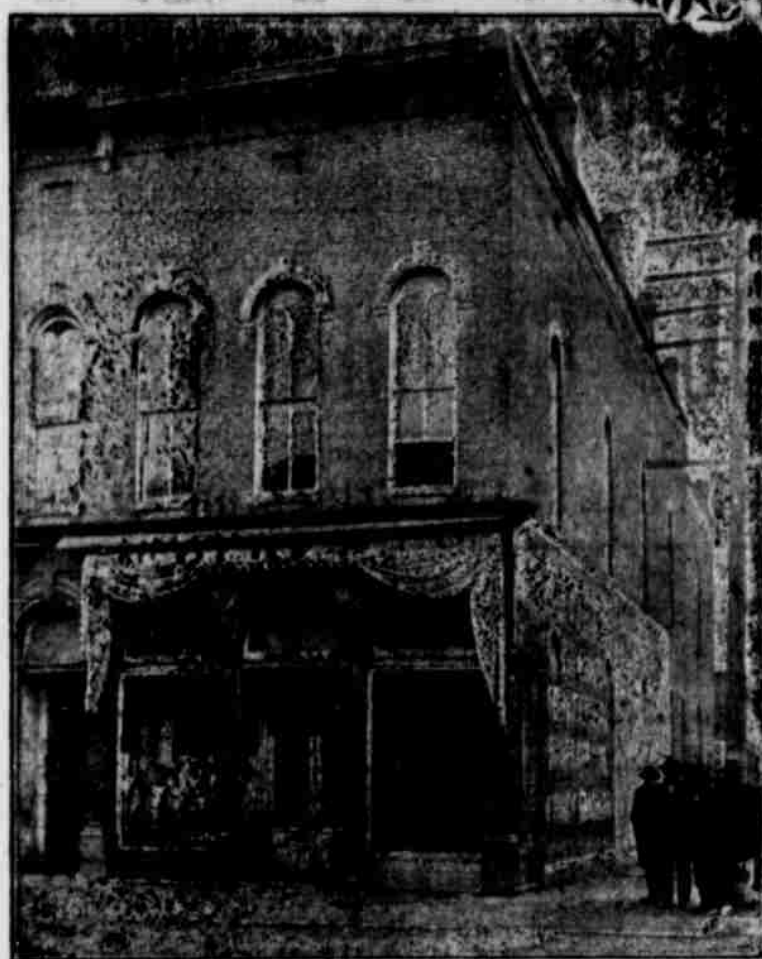

This attracted the Emperor's attention and, coming over to the woman, he told her not to be afraid, but added that the battle was about to be fought she should betake herself and little girl to a place of safety. He then turned to the little Anne-Joseph, and patting her on the cheeks, told her to be "a good little girl and take care of her mother."

Encouraged by his kindness, the farmer's wife then told the Emperor that her brother had served in one of his Dragon regiments, but had not been heard of for several years. On ascertaining the name of the regiment Napoleon replied that he was one of those that suffered most during the retreat from Russia, but he would have inquiries made. He then told them to hurry off into the forest of Sombrefe until the fighting was over. Mme. Rubay has a perfect recollection of the Emperor's appearance and described him as "a little man with a big nose."

She also remembers the scene of destruction and slaughter presented by the village when they returned the next day. She describes the French soldiers as "fine fellows," but her recollection of the Prussians is not so favorable, for "they ate up all our chickens and our two calves without paying for them."—Ex.

Baby Girl as a Present.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3.—When Chas. B. Cryer saw a couple draw up to the door of his crockery store at 584 Michigan avenue today and a woman alight bearing a large box, neatly tied, which she requested him to take home to his wife, he took the package without a thought that the contents would be other than flowers or some other token of regard for Mrs. Cryer, who is not strong and is often made the recipient of kind remembrances. He carried it to his home and waited a moment to see what friend had been so generous in remembering his wife this time. Standing by his wife's side he watched her untie the cords and lift the cover from the box, and there lay a baby girl about a month old asleep. The little stranger was neatly dressed, and the thoughtful donor had even remembered to put the nursing bottle by her side and the nipple in her rosebud mouth.

Attached to the clothing was a note asking Mr. and Mrs. Cryer to keep the baby, if possible, for the writer knew that they would give it a good home and be kind to it. Mr. and Mrs. Cryer have no intimation of the baby's parentage or history, but have decided to keep her, as they are childless.

Cured Hay Fever And Summer Cold.

A. J. Nusbaum Batesville, Ind., writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." J. H. Orme

ILLUMINATE NIAGARA

Fifty Largest Lights of Their Kind Are to be Used in Undertaking.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 13.—All preparations are about completed for the night illumination of Niagara Falls, regarded by engineers as the greatest feat ever attempted in electrical illumination. The scheme calls for nearly fifty large searchlights, several of them the largest of their kind and capable of throwing a beam of light a hundred miles. The projectors are to be located below the Falls in two batteries, one at the water's edge and the other on high ground on the Canadian side. Every inch of the falls will be under light. Attached to the searchlights will be a recently invented color scintillator by which the beams of light can be made any color at will. The mist and the waters will be bathed in all the colors of the rainbow, producing a most gorgeous effect.

It is planned now to turn on the illuminations for the first time next Thursday night. The work is in charge of the General Electric company, whose experts say that the rays of colored light when flashed in the air will be visible at points as far distant as Toronto and Rochester.
